PROLOGUE

"Academic Excellence", a program aimed at lifting the total level of performance and achievement of the total A. & T. community, was the theme . . . yes, the "battle cry" for the 1962-63 school year.

All of us felt the sting of a "tightening-up" process, a serious and concerted effort to develop an awareness among us that any "ordinary" performance and achievement here were not enough to prepare us for the tightening competition which we were to encounter on the outside.

To classes — good weather, or foul.

We saw much more of the library, spent an increasing number of extra hours in the laboratories, listened much more attentively to those warnings about increasing requirements of the world which awaited us.

Those who got the message, and some didn't, saw the neon glitter of the "country club" side of college life pale to a dull grey, had fewer hours for the snack-bar, heard the blaring sounds from the "big wheel" grind to an almost sudden halt and experienced a deepening concern for those things which really counted.

Like every college and every college year, 1962-63 A. & T. College students witnessed the usual personal problems, woes, pleasures and complaints. These, we learned to know, are just as normal here as they would be in a town with an identical population.

For many of us, we experienced success more often, but failure at times. We took them all in stride for the recognition of them only meant that we were maturing.

I love a parade.

Better to give than to receive.

DEDICA

TION

To —

Mrs. Anna B. Bynum, dormitory counselor for Vanstory Hall since 1957, this 1963 edition of the AYANTEE is dedicated.

This warm personality has been the well spring for inspiration, consolation, sympathy and moral support for hundreds of young women and young men with whom she has had association.

A credit to her profession, Mrs. Bynum does her work with high efficiency, yet with the warmth of understanding, friendship and broad human kindness, which are important to it.

The girls, Vanstory Hall and those who come to visit them, are all Number One with Mrs. Bynum and this important attitude aims at one objective to make a home of the brick and stone which make Vanstory.

Yes, a counselor, a friend, a confidante, and often times a mother, this person enjoys the confidence, admiration and respect of many and for the same reasons, the Staff of the 1963 AYANTEE dedicates this issue to Mrs. Anna B. Bynum.

ADMINISTRATION

The Proctor-Dowdy "Team"
They set a course and followed it

ADMINISTRATION

The administration "team" of Dr. Samuel D. Proctor, president, and Dr. L. C. Dowdy, dean of instruction, had already made an impressive reputation within and without the A. & T. College community. For a good year and a half, the two had thought together and worked together, charting a sure and productive course for the "good ship", A. & T.

The test of the team has been met during the absence of Dr. Proctor, who since January, 1962, has been serving on leave with the U. S. Peace Corps Dr. Dowdy has kept the ship on course.

Dr. Dowdy explains, "Dr. Proctor, the faculty, the students, the public and I would all be disappointed if A. & T. had not moved forward during the period."

The staff of the AYANTEE feels confident that it has expressed the views of A. & T. students, and many, many others, when it says, "A. & T. has moved forward, Dr. Proctor and Dr. Dowdy."

Dr. Dowdy was host to many — in this case, to Dr. Benjamin Mays, president of Morehouse College, and with him, Shirley Hinnant.

AYANTEE STAFF

The members of the 1963 Ayantee Staff have striven devotedly and untiringly to provide a permanent record of those experiences we had here.

The staff had its usual problems in the beginning — a total of twenty persons as eager as ever to work with us, but only twelve saw the job finished. We had many decisions to make, but once the differences were resolved, our work moved forward at a hectic, and often a futile, pace to meet our deadlines.

Through our many efforts and limited materials, we leave you with the thought that we have presented to you collected memories of a year of academic excellence here at our dear Alma Mater.

THE REGISTER

Under the editorship of Tommy Gaddie, The Register Staff worked hard to produce a weekly newspaper which contained news of interest to our students. The alert reporters and other writers, as usual, did an outstanding job. The competent copy readers, proofreaders, typists, and staff critics labored untiringly so that the news would be printed in an entertaining, yet informative, fashion. Much time, effort, and hard work went into the production of each week's issue.

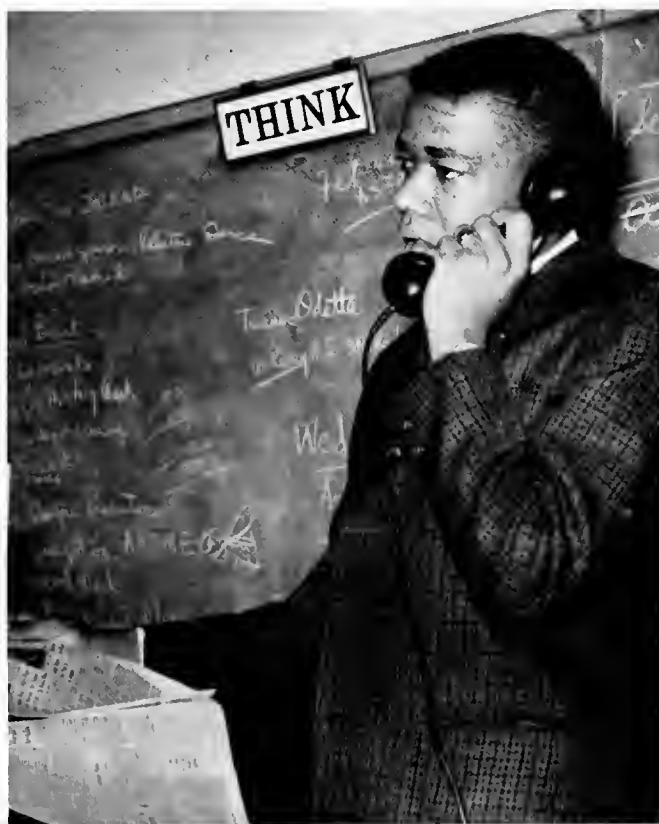

The weekly editions of the newspaper featured informative interviews, thought provoking editorials, features, and good interesting news stories. The Register maintained its national ranking as one of the top student newspapers, judged by the two accepted national rating agencies.

A queen — through and through

MISS A. & T.

The attractive and winsome Miss Rosebud Richardson of Wilmington, N. C., whose warmth in personality endeared herself to all whom she met, reigned as Miss A. & T., with the regal quality of the queen she was.

When she spoke, she had something to say and said it well. Her very carriage, even in the day-to-day college routine, impressed and bespoke the fine qualities she possessed.

A graduate of the Wilmington Williston High School, Miss Richardson was active in the A. & T. community. She held memberships in the Alpha Kappa Alpha, The Student Government, the United Southern Christian Fellowship Foundation and was a women's counselor.

Her hobbies included, crocheting, reading good books and spectator sports.

Long Live Miss A. & T. . . . the personable Miss Rosebud Richardson.

Making its debut on our campus, the 1962 Coronation Ball claimed its role as a permanent event at the college.

In the spotlight that night, Miss Rosebud Richardson, our dear and charming "Miss A. and T.", officially assumed her responsibility by having the crown placed on her head by our acting president, Dr. L. G. Dowdy.

"Miss A. and T.", with other queens and sponsors at her side, and cute little princesses, created an image we will long remember.

With this signal event, the stage was set for a weekend of gaiety and fun, our annual Homecoming Celebration.

COMING

First place float.

Miss A. & T. Alumni "1962" is crowned.

The day many of us had looked forward to, the occasion most talked about, Homecoming. Finally it arrived. The 1962 event was the biggest, happiest and, as usual, the most wonderful occasion of the school year.

The entire campus was agog in excitement amid the rush of incoming friends, preparations for the parade, and the giant welcome to alumni.

The disappointment in the football loss soon disappeared in the renewal of acquaintances and other pleasures attendant at such events.

The weekend slipped out and left us with many pleasant memories of the gala festivities.

We lost! — a disappointment we soon forgot.

STUDENT RESEARCH

About a dozen high ability students, interested in scientific research were rewarded that opportunity through support of the National Science Foundation. The group was involved in basic research in foods and nutrition (chemistry), biology and physics.

Minnie Ruffin and Larry Graddy, National Science Foundation Undergraduate Research Participants, count radioactivity in tissues taken from rats that had been given radioactive isotope.

Ivy Woolcock, undergraduate research participant, working closely with a senior project being conducted by Dr. Cecile H. Edwards, professor of foods and nutrition and research.

Andrew Jackson, undergraduate research participant for the National Science Foundation, and Linda Lyons, graduate assistant for the AEC project, engage in a biochemical research project on radiated mice.

FRESHMAN

At president's reception for freshmen

One of the largest freshman classes packed in Harrison Auditorium early that Monday morning in mid-September to receive basic information in becoming the "good Aggie" . . . that was the beginning of Freshman Orientation.

Their emotions were mixed and differed widely. To many, the experience was the beginning of the realization of life's ambition, to be a part of the Aggie family, to tread in the footsteps of parents who are alumni . . . to be a part of the A. & T. image which had been etched in their minds by other relatives, friends and teachers.

To others it was the bright and pleasant beginning, of a "dream" to be college educated, of preparation for a happy and rewarding career.

Alumni Scholars

ORIENTATION

Others were awed by the size and extent of A.&T. operations, yet sensing the capacity of soon being able to become a part of them.

Still others, away from home for the first time and realizing that this experience would be more extended than any others in the past, had momentary sieges of "homesickness".

The extremes on both sides, the early pleasantries and problems, soon found a level . . . a happy result of Freshman orientation.

AGGIE ALL-AMERICANS

Richard "Dickie" Westmoreland, star halfback and leading scorer, was selected to the PITTSBURGH COURIER All-America first team. A gentleman, on and off the playing field, Westmoreland did a lot of things well. A speedy runner, a superior pass catcher, he was also a tower on defense.

Joseph Henderson, who this year turned in an outstanding performance at the guard was selected to the PITTSBURGH COURIER All America second team. Small in size, this fine athlete packed tremendous wallop.

Baseball or football? Aggie football stars Willie Beasley, Cornell Gordon and Clifton Matthews switch to baseball gear.

After winning the CIAA baseball championship three-years in a row, 1959, 1960 and 1961, last year the Aggies took a split.

Losing just three players, the 1963 squad appears "promising" as the season opened. Head Coach Mel Groomes, just winked, when asked about the prospects for this year, as we pushed him for information in rushing to press with this issue of the AYANTEE.

TRACK

Warmup Drills

Often times it takes years to build a winner and the experience of the Aggie track team in 1962 indicated that a consistent winner was still a few years away.

The 1962 edition, while placing in a few meets and in spots was never a serious threat . . . mostly, we were "also rans." Almost everything was looking up as we put this yearbook to bed. Many avid Aggie track fans were whispering, "This could be the year."

The team was coached by Murray Neely who doubled as assistant in football.

SWIMMING

Swimming at A. & T., in its second year in 1963 had begun to move forward.

The team, coached by Forrist H. Willis, won two dual meets against Johnson C. Smith University, twice; Tuskegee Institute and Morehouse College. The Aggies lost to veteran winners Hampton Institute and Morgan State College, twice and to Howard University.

Russell Edmonds, diver and dash star, emerged as CIAA champion in the 50-yard dash. Other outstanding performers included: Walter Meares and Kenneth Rogers, both distance swimmers.
